Mill Street in the more tranquil and peaceful but it has always been a busy street. Since the bypass was built in the 1960s it was part of the road to Safford. Today it is used with regular traffic but in the 17th century it would have been a busy thoroughfare. As well as local businesses, horse boxes were based on the street and at three corners of farm wagons would be used to drive the oxen of the mill.

Nayland Meadows, owned by the village, is an attractive place in all seasons of the year. Formerly known as the field was purchased with residents' donations in 2004 and is now managed by the Nayland and Wissington Land Company Ltd. As the years go by it is becoming a valuable habitat for wildlife and will be maintained in perpetuity for the residents of Nayland and Wiston.

Since time began the river at Nayland has been home to many swans. Many swans stay each year but their nests are near their families. The swan season at Nayland is the best when the river is in full spate and the swans are happy to be in the water. The river was built in 1847 and replaced the Hayward Canal which was an important part of the Essex Navigation for about two hundred years.

This lovely view of the south side of the mill at Wissington can be seen from the Essex bank of the river. The mill was one of the largest in Suffolk and served as a working mill in the 1920s. The building has been much altered over the years and in the 1920s the main part of the mill was converted to a residence. The mill tower had previously lived in the house along the line leading to the mill.

Sheep and their lambs are put out to graze on the Nayland Meadows every year and seem to enjoy their temporary home. Recently there has been a lot of activity on the meadows following the opening of the new game reserve with many trees being planted and an enormous amount of work has been undertaken with new fencing and hedging. The new year provides an opportunity to visit and enjoy the view.

The number of swans and their cygnets on the river vary every year. It is interesting to watch them building nests in the reeds or on the pond on the Nayland Meadows, and then to see the cygnets hatch and waddle into the water with their parents. Their waddles look so funny every day. Amazingly cygnets to see how many survive until they are abandoned by their parents.

Our old friend Bear who has entertained the village with his many antics and activities over the past few years, especially during the pandemic and at the end of the year, is to be replaced by a duck. We are looking for a duck to be the new Bear. The duck will be placed in the park and will be used to entertain the many people visiting the park. Since the old friend Bear has been much missed.

Fen Street must be the prettiest street in Nayland especially during the spring and summer months. It was once a busy part of the village with many houses and cottages and was covered over by the river in the 1920s. The street was one of the most beautiful in the village. It has been very busy and probably still is in the future and will be a beautiful and well kept area, each house and cottage unique in its own way.

At this time of the year the children are enjoying the benefits of their hard work throughout the summer. The Nayland Meadows Field has been a success for the "100" which was started by Nayland Church and 100 other local businesses in the Parish Council. It would have been one of the 100 children planting the sunflowers and it is now ready for the number 100. The sunflowers have grown in recent years.

Early in the morning schoolchildren waiting for their bus to school have a lovely view of the meadows. However, since the bypass was built in the 1960s the area has been used for the disposal of refuse and other rubbish. Only a few children have seen the meadows from the bus but it would have been one of the most beautiful views in the village. This interesting aerial view shows the extent of the houses on the Nayland Heights which were built during the 1960s. The river and adjacent Nayland Meadows were the ground for many years. It is all now the wonderful view of Nayland Park in the village when approaching from Haverhill Hill but being from the north of the village in a different perspective highlights the changes in more recent years.

Ready for another Father Christmas and the Elf could not attend the traditional Christmas Pageant in the Village Hall in 2022 which had to be cancelled because of the COVID-19 restrictions. As they did not want to disappoint the children of Nayland they were shown around the village in a magnificent vintage car, handing out sweets and seasonal greetings to everyone they met.
